Joint Seminar on

Risk Management in Islamic Banking

El Mouradi Africa Hotel

Tunis, Tunisia

14-15 November 2017

Background:

The IRTI-ADFIMI Seminar will provide an exclusive occasion in deliberations on present-day issues in Risk Management in Islamic Banking. It will also provide a platform for discussion on the cutting-edge processes related to evolving trends in market practices, practical supervisory issues.

Program Objective:

Seminar on Risk Management in Islamic Banking will concentrate on the management of a wide collection of risks in-built in Islamic banking industry. Target audience of the seminar will be able to gain perspective and practicalities of the various aspects of risk management in Islamic banks and the implications of surrounding regulatory and market developments in a speedily evolving environment. Participants will attain a value added assessment on risk governance from prudential perspective and business risk management from a market-player view. The recipients will also figure out the up-to-date changes in the management of peculiar characteristics of risks encountered by Islamic banks, including market risk, credit and liquidity risks, and legal and Shari'ah non-compliance risks.

The Program will suggest initiatives, approaches and means that Islamic banks could adopt to further enhance and develop techniques of Risk Management. Participants will also benefit from knowledge and experience sharing discussions of the emerging challenges of Risk Management.
